RHODE ISLAND – CLIMATE

<https://dem.ri.gov/climate/climate-overview-ri.php>

Rhode Island experiences a humid continental climate which is characterized by warm rainy summers and chilly winters. The highest temperature ever recorded in Rhode Island was 104 degrees Fahrenheit which was recorded on the 2nd of August 1975 in providence. The lowest temperature ever recorded was -23 degrees Fahrenheit (-31 degrees Celsius) which was recorded on the 5th of February 1996 in Greene. Monthly average temperatures range from 83 degree Fahrenheit (28 degrees Celsius to 20 degrees Fahrenheit (-7 degrees Celsius).

According to Koppen climate classification a humid continental climate is characterized by large seasonal variations in temperature with warm to hot summers and cold to very cold winters. Precipitation is mostly distributed throughout the year. Winter precipitation is mostly in the form of snowfall. Snow cover is often very deep. Most summer rainfall is accompanied by thunderstorms with occasional tropical systems. According to Koppen climate classification mean temperatures for the coldest month in regions that experience a humid continental climate like Rhode Island are below 26.6 degrees Fahrenheit (-3 degree Celsius). In such a climate there has to be at least 3 months whose temperatures are equal to or above 50 degrees Fahrenheit (10 degrees Celsius).
