IDAHO – CLIMATE

The four seasons are distinct in all parts of Idaho, but not simultaneous. Spring comes earlier and winter later to Boise and Lewiston, which are protected from severe weather by nearby mountains and call themselves "banana belts." Eastern Idaho has a more continental climate, with more extreme temperatures; climatic conditions there and elsewhere vary with the elevation. Mean temperatures in Boise range from 29°F (−2°C) in January to 74°F (23°C) in July. The record low, −60°F (−51°C), was set at Island Park Dam on 16 January 1943; the record high, 118°F

(48°C), at Orofino on 28 July 1934. The corresponding extremes for Boise are −23°F (−31°C) and 111°F (44°C).

Humidity is low throughout the state. Precipitation in southern Idaho averages 13 in (33 cm) per year; in the north, over 30 in (76 cm). Average annual precipitation (1971–2000) at Boise was 12.2 in (31 cm), with more than 21 in (53 cm) of snow. Much greater accumulations of snow are experienced in the mountains.

City	Elevation	Annual Precip.	Mean Snowfall	July High Temp.	January Low Temp.
Boise	2,840 ft.	12.1 in.	21.3 in.	90.2	21.6
Coeur d'Alene	2,158 ft.	25.9 in.	52.2 in.	85.4	23.3
Idaho Falls	4,730 ft.	10.9 in.	37.5 in.	86.0	10.0
Lewiston	1,440 ft.	12.4 in.	19.8 in.	89.0	27.6
Pocatello	4,450 ft.	12.1 in.	47.2 in.	88.1	14.4
Twin Falls	3,670 ft.	10.4 in.	31.3 in.	85.0	18.6

Temperature

The highest annual average temperatures for Idaho are found in the lower elevations of the Clearwater and Little Salmon River Basins, and in the stretch of the Snake River Valley from the vicinity of Bliss downstream to Lewiston, including the open valleys of the Boise, Payette, and Weiser Rivers. At Swan Falls the annual mean is 55° F, the highest in the State. Obsidian, at an elevation of 6,780 feet in Custer County, has the lowest annual average, 35.4° F, with such places as Sun Valley, Stanley and Island Park not far behind.

In the basin of the Snake River and its tributaries, between Twin Falls and Idaho Falls, monthly mean temperatures of 32° F or lower persist from December through February, while downstream from Twin Falls, at the lower elevations, monthly mean temperatures are freezing or below only in December and January. Low-level areas like Riggins and Lewiston show no month in the year with mean temperature of 32° F or lower.

Boise temperatures can range from very chilly winters to very hot summers. The coldest monthly mean minimum temperature has been -20° F, and the warmest monthly mean maximum 104° F.

Precipitation

To a large extent, the source of moisture for precipitation in Idaho is the Pacific Ocean. In summer, there are some exceptions to this when moisture-laden air is brought in from the south at high levels to produce thunderstorm activity, particularly in the eastern part of Idaho.

Sizeable areas in the Clearwater, Payette, and Boise River Basins receive an average of 40 to 50 inches per year, with a few points or small areas receiving in excess of 60 inches. Large areas including the northeastern valleys, much of the Upper Snake River Plains, Central Plains, and the lower elevations of the Southwestern Valleys receive less than 10 inches annually.

Snowfall

Snowfall distribution is affected both by availability of moisture and by elevation. Annual snowfall totals in North Idaho have reached nearly 500 inches in the past. The greatest long-term (1942-56) seasonal average was 182 inches at Mullan Pass, while the greatest snow depth (also 182 inches) was recorded at that station on February 20, 1954. The major mountain ranges of the state accumulate a deep snow cover during the winter months, and the release of water from the melting snowpack in late spring furnishes irrigation water for more than two million acres, mainly within the Snake River Basin above Weiser.

Sunshine

The annual average percentage of possible sunshine ranges from about 50 in the north to about 70 in the south. Winter, with its frequent periods of cloudy weather, has about 40 percent of possible sunshine in the large open valleys of the south and less than 30 percent in the north. In July and August the average percentage rises to the upper 80s in the southwest and to near 80 in the east and north.
