SOUTH DAKOTA – CLIMATE

<https://www.worlddata.info/america/usa/climate-south-dakota.php>

South Dakota has an interior continental climate, with hot summers, extremely cold winters, high winds, and periodic droughts. The normal January temperature is 12°F (−11°C); the normal July temperature, 74°F (23°C).

The record low temperature is −58°F (−50°C), set at McIntosh on 17 February 1936; the record high, 120°F (49°C), at Gannvalley on 5 July 1936. Normal annual precipitation (1971–2000) averaged 24.7 in (62.7 cm) in Sioux Falls in the southeast, decreasing to less than 13 in (33 cm) in the northwest. Sioux Falls receives an average of 41 in (104 cm) of snow per year.

South Dakota is one of the coldest regions in the United States of America with an average daily high temperature of only 15 degrees. The climate is varied and offers seasons with strong winters and warm summers. The number of hours of sunshine refers to the time when the sun is actually visible.

Unlike some states, South Dakota celebrates four distinct seasons. Each holds its own charm and weather patterns, although wind is possible no matter what the season.
